THE CONSTITUTION,

PUBLISHED DAILY AND WEEKLY

ATLANTA, GEORGIA.

THE DAILY CONSTITUTION is published every day, except Monday, and is delivered by carriers in the city, or mailed postage free at $1 per month $2.50 for three months, or $10 a year.

THE CONSTITUTION is for sale on all trains leaving out of Atlanta, and at newsstands in the principal southern cities.

ADVERTISING RATES depend on location in the paper and will be furnished on application.

CORRESPONDENCE containing important news collected from all parts of the country.

THE CONSTITUTION, Atlanta, Georgia.

ATLANTA, GA., DECEMBER 1, 1882.

The signal service bureau report indicates for the South Atlantic states to-day, fair weather, winds mostly westerly, and stationary or higher temperature and pressure.

The wave of matrimony, which is passing over the state, is simply refreshing, and gives promise that Georgia will lose none of her congressional apportionment in the census of 1890.

It is now stated that Mr. Randall and Mr. Carlisle are in substantial accord on the tariff question. We are glad to hear this. There is now nothing to prevent the friends of Mr. Randall from voting for Mr. Carlisle for speaker of the house.

The Hon. Johnny O'Brien, who is known to groom Mr. Arthur when neither Steve French nor George Bliss is around, has gone to Washington. There seems to be no reason for doubting that the country will be seriously governed during the rest of Mr. Arthur's term.

It is understood that our colored fellow citizens are registering in great numbers so as not to be deprived of their franchise at the city election. As this is a perfectly free country in several respects, we take the liberty of suggesting that it is the privilege and duty of our white fellow-citizens to register.

The protected manufacturers have all along been in favor of free whisky, free beer and free tobacco, and now the other millionaires are demanding free bric-a-brac and other works of art. In the meanwhile the poor and influential will go on wearing clothing that has cost two or three prices, and furnishing scant tables with overtaxed necessities of life.

BREWSTER CAMERON, these called "manager of the department of justice" at Washington, has sent two of his men here on a mysterious errand at Marshall Longstreet's office. So far they say no crookedness has been discovered. General Longstreet's friends also proclaim that everything is all right. At the same time there is much whispered talk as to what it all means.

The probability that the North Georgia conference of the Methodist church will find it necessary to frame two new circuits, draws attention to the great increase of that denomination in the state. As the starting point of American Methodism, it is but in the order of things that Georgia should present an organization, both in discipline and numbers, equal to that of any of her sister states.

The Illinois legislature will soon elect a senator to succeed David Davis, and as the time approaches the indications increase that Governor Culbuck will be the man. He needs fifty-five votes in the republican joint caucus, and his friends claim that he will get them although it is freely confessed that he will have no votes to spare. Mr. Raum is really out of the race, but Governor Oglesby still entertains a vague hope.

The work of making a general geological map of the United States is progressing. A study of the country east of the Mississippi river has been begun. The highest part of the Blue Ridge in the southern states has been studied, and a triangulation is being made, based upon points taken from the coast survey. Prof. W. C. Kerr of North Carolina has charge of the work, and there are three or four parties in the field sketching the local details.

CONGRESSMAN-ELECT HERRON, who died very suddenly of heart disease at his residence in Baton Rouge, was born in Nashville, but nearly all of his useful and active life was spent in Louisiana. He was greatly beloved in Baton Rouge, where he had long been a leading citizen and the foremost lawyer. The candidacy for congress was actually forced upon him, but it is not thought that it had ought to do with his death. He was about sixty years old.

TO-DAY the growing suburb of West End elects its government for the ensuing year. Upon several occasions this election has been allowed to go by default, the suburb being so quiet that the need of a government is never very severely felt. There are reasons, however, why there should no longer be any apathy of this sort. West End is in a state of improvement, and the citizens thereof should take measures to increase the movement in that direction. In another column will be found the ticket which the citizens will vote to-day.

WHAT can be extracted from cane, in the way of syrup and then of money, has not received the attention it deserved. Several Spalding county farmers, however, have been demonstrating that there is quite as much in the cane as in cotton. Their results and the means by which this work has been accomplished, will be interesting reading for those who take a pride in growth and prosperity. Down in the wiregrass country, a negro has gathered thirty bales of cotton under circumstances which prove that no man need fear success if he be but industrious and thrifty.

The two big jobs of the short session promise to relate to the improvement of the Mississippi river and the Hennepin canal. The government for all they are so-called. The Hennepin people will have a government survey as a basis, and the Mississippi will fall back upon the same made and the plans of the commission. The two schemes involve vast expenditures of the people's money, and congress should not act without something better to go on than the views of the lobby.

CHEAP COAL FOR ATLANTA.

The march of Atlanta towards cheap coal is slow but inexorable. Five or six years ago our manufacturers paid more than $3 a ton for the coal to run their engines. Now they get a good quality of coal laid down in Atlanta at $3.50 a ton, the best commanding $3.75, and lower grades $3.25. Mr. Aaron Haas, in an interview published elsewhere, agrees to deliver coal next winter at $3 a ton to manufacturers.

This is a great thing for Atlanta. We had given up hope that the Georgia Pacific would give us coal at $3 a ton of the best quality. Here we have it assured by a route independent of the Georgia Pacific, and from a source outside of the coal fields the Georgia Pacific will penetrate. With cheap coal by these two short routes, and with the Western and Atlantic still bringing its train loads of coal, each of the three drawing from separate fields, and each competing with the other, we shall not only have abundant coal, and cheap coal, but even cheaper coal than we have ever hoped for.

We once felt that if we reached $3 a ton for good coal for steam engines, we would be happy. We are not certain but that we can see $2.75 a ton in the near future.

THE RIGHTS OF RAILROADS.

The decision of the supreme court of Georgia, in the case of Chambers vs. the Cincinnati and Georgia railroad company, is of great importance. The opinion of the court was delivered by Judge Spear, and the full text was given in THE CONSTITUTION of yesterday. The bearings of the decision and the principles it invokes and applies are of greater interest than the case which calls them forth. The road had selected a route through the premises of Mr. Chambers, and had taken possession before any agreement as to compensation was entered into. The road regarded the price fixed by Mr. Chambers as excessive, and the latter refused to accept a compensation fixed by the road. Under these circumstances a board of appraisement was organized. This board fixed a sum which was unsatisfactory to Mr. Chambers and he appealed from its decision, applying to the superior court of Floyd county, for an injunction to restrain the road from occupying the route through his premises until he had received just and adequate compensation. The court refused the injunction, and an appeal was taken to the supreme court, which grants the injunction and lays down important principles for the guidance of courts and corporations in the future.

The constitution of the state provides that "private property shall not be taken or damaged for public purposes without an adequate compensation being first paid," and it is under this constitution the charter of the Cincinnati and Georgia railroad company was granted. It is in all respects an exceedingly liberal charter, and gives to the corporation organized under it an equal footing with all other railroad corporations in the state, but before it, or any other company, can take the property of a citizen for its own use and convenience, it must first pay the just and adequate compensation.

It is to be noted also, as a matter of some importance, in view of some of the arguments that have been made to the railroad policy of Georgia as embodied in the law under which the railroad commission was established, that the supreme court distinctly recognizes the fact that the rights-of-way of railroad corporations are to be used for public purposes.

THE FLORIDA SHIP CANAL.

The project of building a ship canal across the peninsula of Florida has been made the subject of discussion for a great number of years, and we had supposed that a movement in that direction, with foreign capital for its basis, had already been organized—at any rate there was considerable talk about such a scheme in the newspapers awhile ago. If there is such an organization, it is apparent that a good many well-known men in this country are of the opinion that the project is large enough to admit of two companies. The directors of the new company, whose names were announced in our dispatches yesterday, are substantial men, and it is not improbable that they will succeed in carrying forward a work which is of vast importance to the whole country.

While the scheme of a ship canal is not as thoroughly in the interest of interstate commerce as the proposition of the late Colonel Philip Ralston to utilize the land-locked channels of the gulf and south Atlantic coasts for a large canal, nevertheless the completion of the enterprise would bring about wonderful changes in Georgia and the southern Atlantic states, and would go a great way in the direction of solving the transportation problem which is now vexing the people of the west, and preventing in a measure the material development of the south.

The scheme of a ship canal across Florida is not at all visionary. In fact it is perfectly feasible, nature having already indicated the course of the channel. Important streams of water are waiting to be utilized in the work, and it may be added that Brunswick, Savannah, and Georgia, and the whole south are anxious to reap the advantages of such an outlet for the produce of the west and north-west.

DEATH FROM FUNERALS.

The board of health of Boston have instituted a reform that should spread all over the country. They have issued an order that no public funerals shall take place in cases in which the cause of death was small-pox, scarlet fever, diphtheria and typhus fever. The remains are to be placed at once "in a properly sealed receptacle," and not thereafter disturbed except for burial. Caution is also urged upon all to remain without the room in which such a death occurred, except those of course who are called to it by duty. These regulations may seem harsh, but the danger of contagion is so great in the diseases named that other towns would do well to disregard the seeming harshness and follow closely the rules of the Hub.

This new departure is really a departure in the direction of common sense. It would take away no doubt some of the sentiment of such funerals, including the attendance of the habitual funeral-goers; but all this can be made up if thereby some other funerals are avoided or at least postponed. If as soon as a case of contagious disease appears, it is a public necessity to create an isolation of the patient, certainly isolation after death can not be objected to except upon sentimental grounds that will not stand analysis. True, it would render the lot of mourning friends still harder, but private grief should in such cases be willing for the public good to do without the usual signs of sympathy. A grief-stricken parent certainly must desire above all else that no similar burden shall be laid through him upon any other man. And if the immediate friends are willing to forego a gathering of friends, the friends themselves need not be consulted. It may not be necessary in all towns to adopt the Boston rules, but it would be again in every town if there could spring up a healthy public sentiment against the customary recklessness at funerals of persons that died from malignant and contagious diseases. Isolation is the only safe rule, and many a person would to-day be living if the dead had not become in obedience to a custom that no one can successfully defend, an instrument of disseminating disease. In all such case private feeling should be subordinated to public duty.

REDUCTION WITHOUT RETRENCHMENT.

The republicans seem in their hour of gloom to be very willing to reduce taxation, especially internal taxation, but their repentance does not extend to any retrenchment in expenditures. The estimates submitted by the administration for the next fiscal year exceed the appropriations for the present fiscal year by the sum of $22,021,742. Every branch of the government asks for more money, and these demands have been formulated since the November elections. More money is wanted for the army, for new steel cruisers and the old monitors, for the Indian bureau, for public works—for, in short, every branch of the public service. The following table presents the proposition of the administration, except as to the post-office, the rivers and harbors, and permanent appropriations:

	Estimates 1883-84.	Appropriations 1882-83.	Increase.
Legislative.....	$3,274,049	$3,085,145	$188,904
Executive.....	18,666,000	16,983,910	1,682,090
Judicial.....	408,500	400,000	8,500
Foreign.....	2,300,000	1,342,835	957,165
Military.....	28,907,445	27,362,287	1,545,158
Navy.....	23,481,078	14,884,432	8,596,646
Indian affairs.....	6,725,311	5,257,355	1,467,956
Pensions.....	101,575,000	100,000,000	1,575,000
Public works.....	14,361,719	7,439,404	6,922,315
Total.....	208,790,816	226,763,076	22,021,742

Whether the Republican-Keifer people, who, although dead, are still legislators, will be able to crowd this programme through, remains to be seen. The chances are that there will be no material reduction in expenditures until after July 1, 1884. Men who failed to secure re-election will not care how high the appropriations are carried, and the remainder of the republicans are not numerous or strong enough to stand up against the cadavers who retain all their old methods and promptings.

WITHIN two years, Mahone will be a howling democrat of "the old school." Gorham's boss is keenly alive to the necessity of modern politics, and he will desert his republican friends promptly whenever he finds it in his interest to do so.

The people of Georgia ought to be happy. The democratic party is solid, and there will be no elections of importance for two years. Could anything be more genuinely Arcadian than this?

The large black spot recently seen on the face of the sun shows that the solar orb is troubled with a republican party, which, like the people of our own republic, is endeavoring to work off.

Our estimable republican contemporaries have omitted to print their regular weekly bulletin in regard to the state of Dorsey's health. This creates a genuine news vacuum.

The Boston Journal and other organs frequently allude to what they call "the free trade party." There is no free trade party in this country, nor is there likely to be.

Your Uncle David Dorsey's wedding has been postponed until next March. He has no time to marry as long as his independent party is engaged in business.

We take pleasure, thus early in the season, of reminding democratic congressional orators that the south has already had more "vindication" than it wants.

The man who is well enough to dream to-night will dream that an olive green field with a blue hat flung a plate of stewed cranberries against the wall.

Now that Conkling and Cameron have been wallowed, the next step in the march of reform will be for the people to wallow the entire republican machine.

The Philadelphia papers are praising the girl-girl. This is an evidence of genuine progress. In Georgia, thank Heaven, all our girls are girl-girls.

DON CAMERON should hire a man to brush the dirt off his back. He will then be able to take his seat among the spectators.

EDITOR WALSH, of Augusta, since the brass band riot in that city, has concluded to part his whiskers in the middle.

When the Chicago editors begin to write essays on taxation, it may be understood that the country is at peace.

KELLOGG appears to be in a bad way. He should go to Texas and take out naturalization papers.

CANNED meat weighing not over four pounds can be sent through the mails as fourth-class matter. The post-office department don't like it, but hesitate to make the manufacturers change the name to "cat meat."

The Vicksburg Herald thinks that the Mississippi river congressional committee have demonstrated beyond question, among others, three important facts: that levees are necessary to channel improvement; that the Lake Borgne outlet is a questionable scheme; and that the jetty is a such cess.

ACCORDING to Mr. Proctor, if from a single pair of 5,000 years of age and there had been no death, the population of the earth would be 2,199, 915 followed by 141 ciphers. It would require to hold this population a number of worlds equal to 3,169,525 followed by 125 ciphers. The figures are very valuable in view of the immediate danger of people living 5,000 years.

An opera-house on wheels is the latest dramatic novelty, and a company with headquarters at Kansas City has been organized to build and manage it. It is to consist of eight railway cars which can be expanded by ingenious mechanism into a capacious structure, with auditorium and stage complete, and is designed for the benefit of communities which do not possess facilities for the production of plays. It will run from place to place on the railroads and carry a portable track upon which it can be switched off and transformed into a theatre.

With recent prices much lower than those now ruling, the distillation of petroleum oil from oil shales has gone on at a profit in Scotland. It will be resumed in this country if the price of oil remains where it is, and current quotations are certain to stress the development of Caspian oil fields, now half worked, to lead to the sinking of wells in the Tampico oil tract in Mexico, to make the petroleum in southern California an article of commerce, to set the north Borneo company to make the most of its oil deposits, while oil will be worked in India and new discoveries are tolerably certain at one or two points in this country. The world is still a good ways off from being without oil.

"No Man's Land" is the name applied to a corner of our frontier. Look north of the great Pend d'Oreille or Ear Drop lake in northern Idaho. Let your eye ascend the map until it rests upon the most remote and unexplored part of our frontier, where the Colorado, where the 49th and 50th parallels of longitude cross the 114th and 115th parallels. All the space between, and for fifty miles above and below across its middle by the national boundary line, and so half a fit owned by her majesty and half by the United States. The United States half, however, is equally between Montana and Idaho, an area of some 4,000 square miles, shut in from the rest of the world by the cincture of the Snake and the Selkirk mountains.

That is the Kootenay or no man's land.

PERSONAL INTELLIGENCE.

GENERAL HANCOCK opened a church fair in New York on Monday.

SINCE her withdrawal from the stage, Anna Hastings has been living at Honesdale, Pa. With her mother, a venerable Quaker lady of eighty-seven, and her sister, Susan, a little blue stocking, Anna is said to be disappointed and soiled.

MONTGOMERY BLAIR lives at Silver Spring, Maryland. He has a fine profile, with high cheekbones and a bold chin, but he keeps his eyes almost closed, which gives him a subtle, intriguing expression. He is a good talker, especially on politics or finance.

WILLIAM M. WANNEMACHER, who is to act the part of the Savior in the Passion play, is 25 years old, and has been by turns an actor, law student, freight clerk, Indian soldier, preacher and a student of Macdonald. He says he intends preaching every Sunday while the play is going on.

JOSEPH COOK says: "I am a Congregationalist, but I have spoken for Christianity so long that I am in a transitory state, and don't know what I am. My father is a Baptist, an Open-Communionist, and in their places he has been on Plymouth Rock, and a vast majority of that faith as sound (I will use a terse expression) as Methodists. I have been inclined for orthodoxy as represented by Professor Park."

CINCINNATI has two paragonies. One of whom, John Flinn, has been for nine years a landmark at the corner of Fourth and Walnut, and he has made enough money to buy considerable real estate and become a landed proprietor. The other is a girl, who is a famous diamond merchant, and he is said to be one of the best in the city. He carries his stock in his trunk, and he is said to be one of the best in the city.

J. J. FINNEY, M. C., of the Chicago Times, has been denied by the Chicago journalists.

The Baltimore Day, which is a success as an evening paper, has issued a photographic facsimile of an issue.

The Jacksonville Times is just one year old. The editor says the paper has been successful since the third month. The Times is the prettiest paper in Florida, and deserves all the success it can attain in its state.

The late Newton F. Whiting, one of the owners of the New York Commercial Bulletin and the financial editor of the Evening Post, was the writer of the financial articles sent from New York to the associated press, and his article was a model of his kind.

FRANK HATTON will assume control of the reorganized National Republican next week, and Clinton Snowden, land managing editor of the Chicago Times, will hold the same position on this paper. George Gorham will be retained as editorial writer. Hatton can now say a "daisy daisy."

GENERAL WEAVER, the greenback standard bearer and E. H. Gillette, the well known greenback politician, have bought the Iowa State Tribune. It is rumored that the paper, under their control, will advocate the formation of a new political organization having anti-monopoly for its most conspicuous principle.

LITERARY NOTES.

ALL the more important notes appended to the late E. W. Lane's translation of "The Arabian Nights" have been gathered into a series of chapters, forming a complete picture of Arabian society in the middle ages and to-day. The volume will be ready in the course of the month.

CHARLES READE's new volume, "Readiana," is a collection of the bright, shrewd and racy comments on current events contributed by the author to the newspapers during the past few years. In this volume Reade shows himself more than ever a genuine and a sagacious advocate of all that is humane and noble.

KARL EGON ERBE, the oldest of the German poets, lately died at Prague. In his youth he was declared by Goethe a genuine poet, and his dramas still hold their place. His lyrical poems are considered in Germany models of purity and sweetness of diction. His greatest work is his National Bohemian epic, "Wien."

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

"Who would think it?" said Mrs. Brezy, taking up a piece of fancy work and sitting comfortably in her rocking chair. "It's only a few weeks to Christmas."

"Is that all?" asked Mr. Brezy, deep in an editorial on the recent action of the young republicans. "Yes, only a few weeks," said Mrs. Brezy. "The time will fly away before we know it and I have hardly thought of presents. I have so many to make, too. Now you are elected, I suppose you won't grumble as you usually do at this season of the year. There isn't any excuse for you saying that you can't afford to give me a few dollars for presents this year. It's high time I had a little money to make money with, too. Suppose you let me have a check for a hundred dollars in the morning and a check for a hundred dollars in the evening."

"A check for what?" asked Mr. Brezy, looking up suddenly from his paper.

"Only a hundred dollars to start with," said Mrs. Brezy, putting her thread a little nervously through her work.

"A hundred dollars to start with?" ejaculated Mr. Brezy. "Start what?"

"That's all the attention you ever pay to anything I say," said Mrs. Brezy. "I suppose you haven't heard a word I've been saying. Do put down that everlasting newspaper and pay a little attention to your wife for once in your life. I say you may give me a check for a hundred—a hundred and fifty dollars in the morning for Christmas."

"You just said a hundred," said Mrs. Brezy.

"I knew you'd notice that," said Mrs. Brezy. "I know I said a hundred, but I've been thinking of it for some time, and I've decided to give you a hundred and fifty dollars in the morning for Christmas."

know I said a hundred a moment ago, but I've changed my mind. The fact is, I should really have two hundred dollars."

"My dear, if you keep raising the limit at this rate I shall have to draw out of the bank. I've got to give you a real handsome present this year, but if you are going to be so silly, of course I won't have to take what I can afford to give you."

"Thirteen of the children, and of their mother, and grandmothers and my dear sister-in-law, to say nothing of brother Jack and cousin Harry, and your own mother—"

"You hold over me," said Mr. Brezy. "Scorn the pot," and he threw down a blank check. "Fill her out to suit yourself."

"Yes," said Mrs. Brezy. "Well, you shall have just the sweetest, nicest present I ever gave you. You shall have a New England silver tea set, and every thing that is new and beautiful, and a tremendous kiss square upon the lips, and flitted out of the room with the check."

BARGAINS IN JEWELRY

FOR THE COMING CHRISTMAS.

YOU WILL FIND THE BEST BARGAINS IN fine diamonds, watches and jewelry at No. 5 Whitehall street. I have been receiving goods for the last four weeks, and will have new goods coming in until the holidays are over, which makes my stock extraordinary large, and it must be reduced. Call and see my prices and goods, and you will say the handsomest goods and the lowest prices can be found at the silver palace, No. 5 Whitehall street.

PERSONAL.

Senator Pope Barrow is at the Kimball.

Mr. J. B. Gudgeon, of Dalton, was in the city yesterday.

Mr. W. T. Cheney, of Rome, is stopping at the Kimball.

Mr. Charles A. Sindall, of Macon, was at the Kimball yesterday.

The Madison Square Theater company are registered at the Kimball.

Miss Dollie Lewis and Miss Ella Lewis, of Dalton, are guests of the Kimball.

Miss Lucie Pou and sister, Carrie Lou Pou, of Madison, are at the Kimball.

Mrs. E. T. Grubbs, late of Texas, is with her sister, Mrs. F. M. Haygood, 410 West Peachtree, and is very sick.

Mr. J. A. Sams has been appointed general southern agent of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, and Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway, vice Wallace McPherson, resigned.

Major W. B. McCracken, on yesterday was called by telegraph to the bedside of his sick son, aged eighteen years, who is in Florida. After Major McCracken had left another telegram was received announcing the death of the sufferer.

The Eufaula Observer says: Mr. R. A. Hemphill, one of the proprietors of THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, was in the city Thursday, in the interest of his paper. We found Mr. Hemphill to be a most agreeable gentleman, and he made a good impression with those of our people with whom he came in contact. He secured a large number of subscribers here, and will do even better when he comes this way again.

Hon. J. J. McCants, of Taylor county, is one of the most valuable members of the house. Always prompt at his post, both in the notice of committee rooms, he votes and acts with the courage of his convictions. Steadfast in his opinions and conservative in his views, he illustrates well the sturdy manhood of our country gentlemen. Taylor county may always feel that her interests and that of the state are carefully administered while in the hands of such men as her present member.

THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

At the expiration of Alderman Beermann's term of office, the south side of the railroad will have no immediate representative in the aldermanic board, as there are two of the ones holding over from the north side. Justice demands that Alderman Beermann's successor should be from the south side of Atlanta, and they present the name of that old, tried public spirited citizen, Major John H. Meccasin, as a suitable man to fill the place and one that will be supported by the whole people of Atlanta.
